America Recycles Day (ARD) is a chance for recycling coordinators across the nation to thank people for recycling by hosting fun community events and awarding prizes to dedicated recyclers. This year, residents in every state of the nation participated in America Recycles Day and made a pledge to recycle more throughout the next year.

How CVWMA Celebrated ARD 2004

In central Virginia, citizens participated in several events sponsored by CVWMA. On November 12th we held a "Score One For Recycling Night" at the Richmond RiverDogs hockey game where fans brought 2,000 aluminum cans and earned hockey pucks printed with the RiverDog and CVWMA logos.

At a table staffed by CVWMA employees we were able to answer questions about our recycling programs and people signed up for the America Recycles Day pledge contest. On Saturday November 13th, CVWMA partnered with the Children's Museum of Richmond for a family festival about recycling, complete with children's recycled art activities.

Our mascot "Bin" poses in front of the Children's Museum.

Bank of America employees donated over 20 bags of recycled art supplies to the Children's Museum.

The Museum's Art Studio regularly features common household items such as plastic tubs and lids, egg cartons, buttons, yarn and clothes that visitors use to create art. Many of these items are not recyclable in CVWMA programs, so we teamed with the Museum for a supply drive to collect these needed items for the Art Studio. At the event, museum visitors made handmade recycled paper in the Art Studio along with all kinds of other creations using the Studio's supplies. The kid's kitchen featured a "recycled" snack of bread pudding that participants made and then enjoyed eating. Kids practiced bowling using plastic soft drink bottles as pins and had their picture taken with Bin, CVWMA's big animated curbside recycling bin. They also played the recycling trivia game to earn prizes and entered the America Recycles 2004 pledge contest. Six hundred children and adults visited the Museum on the day of the event.

National Prizes

After the local drawing, all entries were mailed to ARD for the national drawing where the Grand Prize was a Ford Escape Hybrid, the industry's first no-compromise SUV with a full gasoline-electric hybrid power train. The Grand Prize for kids was a recycled aluminum content Trek Model 4300 24-speed bicycle (five to be awarded).

Prizes for America Recycles 2004 are very earth-friendly, such as being made from post-consumer recycled materials (meaning they are made from things you put in your recycling bins!) ♻️

CVWMA To Host Litter Summit This Spring

Central Virginia Waste Management Authority is planning a regional litter summit for this spring. "This event will bring together broad constituencies of local elected officials, law enforcement personnel, government agencies, businesses and individuals," said Executive Director John Mitchell. "It is our hope to identify regional litter problems and design specific solutions in a long-term litter prevention plan."

Look for more information about this event in upcoming editions of The Regional Waste Line.

Increasing Outreach to Adult Citizens Identified as Goal of CVWMA

Two CVWMA committees, the Executive Committee and Curbside Recycling Education Advisory Committee, have asked the staff to explore methods to increase outreach to the adult population in our service area. While the public information staff routinely responds to requests from area groups and organizations for presentations about waste issues, we hope to increase the public's awareness of this service by specifically targeting local groups with mailings and telephone calls.

Working with member local governments, CVWMA staff has developed a list of more than 300 groups to contact with the offer of doing presentations to their members. Postcards featuring the offer will be mailed each month to different groups throughout the region.

CVWMA outreach served 24 adult-oriented groups in fiscal year 2004, including fourteen presentations to groups such as Rotary clubs and homeowner associations with approximately 300 people in attendance. More than 450 copies of CVWMA publications were also distributed to these organizations. We look forward to surpassing these figures in 2005 and educating more adult citizens about CVWMA programs. We will also continue to serve youth-oriented groups, such as schools and scout troops, by providing publications and presentations.

If you would like to invite CVWMA staff to visit your group, please contact the public information staff at info@cvwma.com or by calling 359-8413. ♻️

Regional Electronics Recycling Begins

Recycling electronics is a young but growing trend in the United States. Over the last two decades, spectacular advances in technology have led to a dramatic increase in our reliance on electronic products. Televisions, computers, wireless phones, copiers, fax machines, telephones, and VCRs, are just some of the electronics that have become a central part of our everyday lives.

As product innovations multiply and electronic product use increases, the lifespan of electronic equipment has decreased. The question emerges for consumers of what to do with old electronic equipment that no longer fully meets our needs.

Central Virginia Waste Management Authority responded to this region's need to recycle electronics and in November began an ongoing program to help residents safely dispose of unwanted electronic equipment. Three Saturday collections were held during the month in Richmond, Henrico and Chesterfield. In all, 204 vehicles attended and 16,678 pounds of materials were collected, including 206 televisions and computer monitors.

At three area collection events over 8 tons of electronics were collected.

Recycling Electronics Five Days A Week

Citizens and businesses can also take equipment to the Sims Recycling Solutions recycling facility at 3220 Deepwater Terminal Road in Richmond. Items will be accepted Monday through Friday between 7 am and 4 pm.

Items accepted in the program:

- Televisions
- Computers
- Computer monitors
- Computer accessories (cables, wires, keyboards, mice, speakers, etc.)
- Printers, scanners & copiers
- Telephones & cell phones
- Fax machines
- VCRs & camcorders
- Stereos

What Happens to Equipment After Collection?

The contractor will first assess items for reuse potential and functionality. Working devices may be refurbished by the contractor and distributed for reuse. The hard drives of computers will be securely and completely erased for our citizens' protection. Nonworking or older equipment will be demanufactured into components like plastics and metals for recycling. Reuse or recycling will be applied to whole items/systems and individual components.

Ad Agency Selected

In October CVWMA hired The Ad Agency, based in Washington, D.C. to assist with creating radio and print ads as well as other printed materials that are needed.

The Ad Agency is not only a highly esteemed organization known for their creative work, they also have experience working with a recycling authority, which is a huge advantage. "They understand the marketing issues associated with getting people to recycle. They understand how the industry works," said Kelley Hope, CVWMA's Public Information Coordinator.

The Ad Agency has already worked on their first project for the Authority- a radio ad that ran for two weeks in the beginning of February. The ad featured original music and lyrics that encouraged people to recycle because "it makes you feel good." ♻️
